

Handwritten Arabic text in a dense, cursive script, likely a manuscript or a collection of letters. The text is arranged in columns and includes various phrases and words, some of which are highlighted or written in larger, bolder letters. The script is characteristic of the Maghrebi or Andalusian style. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper with some visible staining and wear.

وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى
وَدِينِي مَا خُفِيَ فِيهِ تَقْوَى

King Saud University