

Handwritten Arabic text, likely a manuscript or treatise, covering both pages. The text is densely packed and includes various annotations and marginalia. The main body of text is written in a clear, cursive hand, while the margins contain smaller, more hurriedly written notes. The paper shows signs of age, with some discoloration and wear at the edges.

