

Handwritten Arabic text in a classical script, likely a medical or scientific treatise. The text is densely packed and includes several large, bolded words or phrases. The right page contains a prominent heading: الربط المذنب (The Tied Knot). The text discusses anatomical or physiological concepts, mentioning terms like 'الربط' (ligament) and 'المذنب' (tied). The left page continues the text, with some marginalia and smaller script. The overall appearance is that of an antique manuscript with some wear and tear.