

Handwritten text in Arabic script, densely packed in a central column with marginalia on both sides. The text appears to be a philosophical or scientific treatise, possibly related to optics or geometry, given the mention of 'بصائر' (optics) and 'اشعاع' (rays).

Handwritten text in Arabic script, densely packed in a central column with marginalia on both sides. The text continues the treatise from the previous page, discussing various concepts and providing detailed explanations.