

Handwritten Arabic text on the left page, densely packed and written in a cursive style. The text is arranged in several columns, with some lines starting with red ink. The script is highly legible and fills most of the page area.

Handwritten Arabic text on the right page, continuing the dense cursive script from the left page. It features similar columnar arrangement and includes some red ink highlights. The text appears to be a continuation of the same work or a related section.

