

Handwritten Arabic text, likely a manuscript or treatise, covering both pages. The text is densely packed and includes various sections, some with headings or sub-headings. The script is a cursive style typical of classical Arabic manuscripts. The right page contains a large section with a heading that appears to be "الاشارة على..." and discusses various topics, possibly related to astronomy or philosophy. The left page contains several paragraphs of text, some with headings like "في الصوم" and "في الفطر".