

Handwritten Arabic text in two columns on a parchment page. The text is dense and includes various marginal notes and corrections. The script is a form of classical Arabic, likely used in a scholarly or medical context. There are several large initials and headings in red ink. The page shows signs of age and wear.

